

How can you create a rectangle in your composition?

Press the R key, or in the canvas toolbar choose the rectangle shape from the create set

What does the add blend mode do?

The add blend mode will act as the name implies: a light pixel in the foreground image will lighten up the corresponding pixel beneath it to a value of full white, while a dark foreground pixel will decrease the visibility of the background pixel

What key do you press to open the HUD?

F7

Describe two ways to add a new group in the layers tab

Click the add (+) button at the top of the layers tab. Alternatively, you can select a layer and hold down the mouse button. Move your mouse pointer to the left. The hollow circle at the left of the position indicator a line to the group label, and a round Green plus symbol is visible, signifying that a new group will be created just below the pointer.

How do you make a clone layer?

Select the layer and press K

What does baking do?

Baking creates a single element from a layer or group with all effects, behaviors, and properties applied. That new layer can be automatically reimported into Motion 3 to replace the source material, while preserving all of its source elements.

How can you temporarily turn off effects for a group?

Click the gear icon to the right of the group's name so that a red line strikes through it click again to reenable

Describe how you would make the last frame of a clip in your sequence hold for an extra 100 frames

From the timing section of the properties tab in the Inspector, set and condition to hold and set and duration to 100 frames